

NORMA BOWDEN

To: BBC Charter Review Consultation 30 January 2004
Department for Culture, Media & Sport
2-4 Coopers St, London SW1Y 5DH.

Dear Sir / Madam.

If you please, may I ask why is it so hard for me a new poet and writer of a new mini drama "Spy Catcher" to get a chance on BBC Radio and BBC Television?

*
In my opinion BBC is fine the way it is governed, although like every one, and everything else there is always room for improvement.

Like, giving someone new a chance, and help when needed instead of hearing, and watching some programmes over and OVER AGAIN and AGAIN.

With thanks
Yours sincerely

N. Bowden (1)

PTO:

Dear Sir / Madam,

May I please interest you in my script. "Spy Catcher" is a mini drama about a double agent named Anna who employs personnel to spy out the latest computer technology from companies then sells to rival computer companies because she believes that any new technology should be shared and not hidden, so that all companies can benefit by it, and at the same time she builds trust for herself within by working for them as a computer spy catcher.

I am a well known westcountry poet.

With many thanks

Yours sincerely
A. B. O. U.

21 December 2003.