Dear Sir/Madam,

A leaflet from the library in heominster has prompted this letter. I have the Housebound service from there so it was a very rare visit.

Being 83 years of age I do not find many programmes of interest to me now. Soaps, jazz music or modern songs (so-called) sport do not have any of my attention. There used to be the occasional programme on crafts which I still do and liked. There is not much light music even on the radio ie. Brian Kay's hour, not on often enough for my taste anyhow.

It would be good to have a good play or musical early evening for preference as people in my age group are tired by 9.30 pm. Sad though it is!

I was also sorry that Woman's Hour was moved to the morning. Talks such as were on I found interesting & would like more. Thank you.
