

The royal charter review,
London.

25.3.03

Dear Sir/Madame,

I would like the new royal charter that will be awarded to the BBC to have built in by design that makes it impossible for the BBC to paint a negative picture of the Catholic religion .

The reason I say this is because at present the stories , programs , news bulletins , etc ... are quick to include a negative story about the Catholic religion , but are reluctant to include a positive story about the Catholic religion.

I feel that the motivation for the Catholic religion alone to get this unfair treatment (compared to other non-crown religions) is , because by painting the Catholic religion as an old out of date foreign religion , it then makes by default the religion of the Crown seem more modern .

Please remember people have been practising the Catholic religion in this country since the day it was formed in 924 A.D.

Your faithfully

Gerard Comer
