

From: Anthony Everett
Sent: 13 December 2003 10:12
To: BBC Charter Review
Subject: BBC Charter

The format of the BBC should be kept largely as it stands on the basis of it ain't broke so don't fix it . However all political influences must be removed. Tessa Jowell should have no input nor should any Focus group. Political Parties must not use BBC Radio and Television to promulgate their policies. The Today programme should report only on issues of the day not involving investigative reporting where one interviewee tries to out talk the interviewer and where statistics are bandied about slanted to illustrate whatever point to made for or against.

More informative discussion leading to better evaluation of moral and social values.towards toleration of differing creeds and customs.