

From: David Eric Jenkins
Sent: 16 December 2003 17:39
To: BBC Charter Review
Subject: Some food for thought.

In my opinion the BBC presents most News broadcasts in a very satisfactory manner even to the extent of portraying war like a game of sport between the combatants rather than boosting national feeling. We need many more educational programmes such as detailed items on Europe: Health Provision in Europe, Education, funding of transport, Taxation to name but some. And then at home we need programmes about the country's constitution, how it has developed in its own unwritten way, advantages and disadvantages all presented in as impartial a manner as possible.

I must commend the BBC for presenting this opportunity for me and other members of the public to make their views directly known.

D.E. Jenkins