

Sent: 14 December 2003 11:59

To: BBC Charter Review

Cc: malcolm.lawrence@ruralnet.org.uk; colinmurley@abelgratis.com

Subject: Equality of Services

Why do the listeners in Cornwall have to ring a National number to report traffic incidents to Radio Cornwall, whereas Radio Devon can dial a local 0845 number to report the same type of information. Is this being fair to the Radio Cornwall listeners who after all pay the same licence fee as all other residents in the United Kingdom.

Malcolm Lawrence