Dear Sirs,

I apologise for not writing by March 31st and I hope you will still take account of my response to the 'Horn Say' questions.

As a retired couple we've had many years of enjoyment & profitable viewing/listening and have appreciated the vast difference between what we receive compared with other nations.

The BBC's excellence in many areas is really important to us & we would not want to live permanently anywhere but in the UK where it's so easily available.

I will attempt to answer some of the specific questions on a separate sheet but let me state as clearly & strongly as possible that what matters most to my husband & myself is that the BBC should return to standing up for good moral standards & encourage respect for our country's history and heritage. Let the other Broadcasters fill their schedules with implicit & often explicit sex and violence for commercial gain, but please let us have from the BBC what is recognised and saluted as clean entertainment. There has to be progress & therefore change but let it be in a family-healthy way.

Yours truly,
Rosemary Nelson

What do we value most?

News / coverage of world sports { athletics
tennis
Nature proggs / documentaries /
Environmental issues.

Family comedy proggs and films.

What we do not like

Wondering if items after the 9 pm watershed will be suitable for granny / teenager viewing - often ~~not~~ not the case.

BBC accountable to public

Yes, the public should have a greater say & influence.
