

10 Feb 04.

Dear BBC,

It is appalling that the public are still expected to pay a large licence fee to watch the BBC when they now have revenue coming from many other sources.

The digital systems, videos, marketing etc. etc. bring in huge amounts for the BBC, why should the viewer have to pay twice?

It is about time the licence fee was scrapped - then people may be more willing to pay for digital TV. The amount of adverts for digital programmes is Really annoying! While terrestrial viewers are jobbed off with repeats and lowering standards.

From a disgruntled
BBC viewer

M. Sadler.