Dear Sir,

In response to your public consultation I should like to comment as follows.

I appreciate and enjoy news, sport, antiques, nature, travel, documentaries, classical music (where is it?) inspirational programmes about good people who serve humanity, classical novels, Call my Bluff, Gardening.

I abominate sex, violence, swearing and even the cult of vulgarity that seems to be 'in'. As a retired headmistress I have no doubt that young people are influenced by the aggression, violence and immorality fed to them by the media.

On behalf of the thousands of deaf and hard of hearing viewers may I point out how much we enjoy and can hear programmes where speech is not accompanied by background music or noise of any kind.

Yours sincerely,

EA Smith.
