Dear Ms Tanzman

BBC Charter Review

Thank you for your e-mail to Tessa Jowell dated 13 January with your views on the BBC.

On 11 December 2003 Tessa Jowell launched the BBC Charter review with a wide-ranging industry and public consultation. This consultation is supported by a package of survey research and direct engagement with viewers and listeners.

We intend to publish a Green Paper at the end of this year, which will bring together the results of the consultation and other strands of work to form policy options for further consideration. We are grateful for the comments you have made about the BBC and have fed them into the Charter review process.

Thank you for your interest and contribution to BBC Charter review.

Yours sincerely

Dear Ms Jowell,

My husband was a British citizen and I used to enjoy listening to the BBC but not any more. The blatant one-sidedness of BBC reporting is not only disgusting but surprising. This is true about the anti Israeli stand in reporting the Israel-Arab conflict, the anti U.S.A. stand when reporting on Iraq and one has to mention the terrible David Kelly reporting.

Time for overhaul – drastic action is necessary.

I wish you success with this very challenging but very necessary assignment.

Respectfully,
 Tirza Preis Tanzman
