1. What do you value most about the BBC.

The reporting of crime, and local politics covering less well corruption and whitewash in local councils.

2. How should the BBC adapt to cope with changes in technology and culture.

Employing more staff were the people that have experience at a particular job could show the
the more or less experienced person what to do by way of example bringing back the family atmosphere upsizing rather than the corrupt downsizing that way you would have the pool of trained staff in the ever fast moving

3. technology race this is an old fashioned idea that's warranted mullin the past, then you want have somebody at a board meeting saying "we haven't got the staff."
this also mite help with unemployment if other firms see this then the BBC can say, we lead by example.

3. What do you think of the television, radio and online services the BBC provides.

A message notice board where the journalists or production staff responsible for a story can be contacted

The Library Archives for film and Audio ect which is the foundations of all broadcasters,
"information" enough staff to catalogue this Archives fully. So a story can be found via computer in a moments notice.

4. Should the BBC run commercial services,
Yes, but be in control at all times.

5. How should we pay for the BBC.

Through the licence fee and its commercial arm but the fees must be and should be lowered. This is something people always talk about.

6. Is the BBC organised in the most effective and efficient way.

It could be if you get rid of the old boys network just like Q.S. and BBC fees. People say that trying to get a job in the BBC is almost impossible its also been noted the amount of buildings the BBC has but very little staff employed in them. and peoples comment:- and this is what we pay for and walking away in disgust. mummbling corruption.

7. How should the BBC be run? How should it be regulated

The idea that the BBC commissioners having a dual role is a very good one. It should be added that local people should be on the boards with the Government eg the public via the local councils.

8. How do we ensure that the BBC is properly accountable to the public and Parliament local people via local councils as in Q.7.

my thanks - yours sincerely
