

Dear Sir,

18-March 2004

I am writing in response to your leaflet "Your BBC your say".

Answers to your questions in order from the first

Firstly, no intrusive advertisements I value the Arts coverage most.

I am not in a position to comment re changes in technology & culture. I do not use the internet.
I have no interest or pleasure in the many cooking, D.I.Y., gardening and removal of homes programmes you show.

NOR REALITY PROGRAMMES

I really enjoy good intelligent plays,
archaeological & history
programmes.

I dislike soap operas.
I deeply deplore the many explicit sex
scenes in many programs
shown today.

I enjoy BBC radio very much, especially Daily Worship on weekdays.
Also Radio 3 music. I much regret that no Christian act of worship is shown on Sunday mornings on television.

I think BBC should continue commercial services.

I accept the licence fee as a suitable
way to finance BBC.

I think the present
way of running the BBC is good. I lived in the U.S.A for 2 years, & we certainly missed
the B.B.C.!!

The final question is important to me.
I belonged to the National Viewers' & Listeners' Association
since it began 40 yrs
ago. It is now the MediaWatch. I think such a body should be listened to on every occasion.

Yours sincerely
Anne Whittingham
