

13th March 2004

A Very Inadequate reply to the question "What do you most value about the BBC?"

That it is still trusted and respected world-wide and we want to maintain this.

That BBC Radio is worth every penny of the money we pay for our television licence.

BBC Radio 4 is nearly always excellent, and so often are BBC Radio 3 and BBC Radio 2 ; many people appreciate local stations

BBC Radio 4 is consistently interesting, esp for news, politics, current affairs but also for plays and much else. It attracts a very high standard of enthusiasts and experts as broadcasters. Very good religious programmes, & discussions.

BBC Television does best when it attracts "real" people like Rolf Harris, D. Attneborough etc among its presenters. "Songs of Praise" "Antique Roadshow" History and Art programmes are usually good - though we have less and less good fiction it seems.

"How should we pay for the BBC?" As I said, the TV licence fee is good value because for that we get all the radio stations.

"How should the BBC be better Run?" Sorry , no idea!

N Windridge