

Dear Ms. Jewell, sur 20.12.03.
6/1/4

In view the BBC is not a perfect institution, but please could do what you're about.

I get terrific enjoyment from both radio + television, and although there are programmes not always to my taste I'm pleased with what I see + hear.

I do not consider the licence fee exorbitant & in no sense for paying a little more each year to keep up with inflation. In the many countries feel as I do, in spite of their love of privatising everything.

My son was on holiday from Canada in the subject & listened to much radio and some T.V. while over here. He was impressed & in fact if he thought you were messing about with the present set up, he would consider you very short sighted. Don't be influenced by the likes of Murdoch & his ilk.

If in the future I notice any obvious cut back or skimping on the licence fee I shall seriously consider revoing my labour vote at the next election, and I am doubt be alone.

I hope you get letters from other people on the subject & don't forget the thousands of people throughout the world who listen & trust what the BBC is saying to them. Yours sincerely
A.P. Yelcombe
