

Dear Sir/Madam

I do not see why I and the rest of the public, should pay a license fee for the BBC. The BBC exists for the sake of the government, to promote their views, I am not only referring to obvious programs like Question time. But in most programming, for instance, why do all your programs have Black and Asian people in them. Why is the BBC so frightened to portray Blacks and Asians in a negative light in fictional programs. In short, the BBC is influenced too much by government views. And I am expected to pay for this so called privilege.

Celent