

Dear Sir/Ms.

BBC Charter Review

As a very definite supporter of the BBC - with its ideal "to entertain, inform and educate" - but as regards to the lowest standards which in some respects it does appear to be doing over the last 15+ years!!

My main reason for writing this letter is to ask a very simple question. In all the discussions, whether in newspapers, TV or Radio, I haven't seen a simple argument based on the simple logical point 'The Independent Channel is 3.4 x 15 on average cost each one of us (i.e. £45 million) approx £62!!'. Note a letter in the 'Daily Mail' 20 years ago made it £40 per family (the being a very NOW PC word today!!). We have to say £62 per person! a letter quoted last year again in the 'Daily Mail'.

Of course if you are like the majority - buying unhealthily 'junk food' - very in the new NOW!! I would imagine the price should be more like £100 per person.

Therefore I think the £120 licence fee is good value - covering TV, Radio and of course the Best Magazines. The 'Radio Times' and a small section of pages to the 'Craggy SOAPS'!!.

For myself, I would like a shift more

my market - less what I call psychodrama moving towards the sake of it?

I do want the Independent channels for the more intelligent output - but hit the music button
during all the advertisements !!

Really as a matter of interest - after having the analogue SKY system fitted - in almost a couple of minutes - I had discovered the German channels - full of culture in Concerts in wonderful concert halls - Cathedrals - beautiful city centres - Operas etc etc -
I wish I spoke German I would watch the afternoon news series than our equivalent !! - and they are still bravissimo !! Sunday is a dream of classical music.

If you have readed this far change to a very relevant subject - JUNK FOOD - POISON etc - have you heard of 'FAST FOOD NATION' by Schlosser - a terrifying story of corruption - almost slave like treatment of the workers - and of course the plastic food rubbish eaten by the generally ignorant obese masses !!

Yours faithfully
JEALLEN
