

Dear Sir,

I saw your advert asking for the public views on the BBC, by and large I am happy with the service provided, but one thing does rather annoy:

BBC Radio 4

Why does this service end at 1am and does not resume until 5.30 am? When for instance, BBC 7, which has a very small audience, is on non-stop for 24 hours. Being a Radio 4 enthusiast I miss a great many interesting items during the day, surely these could be repeated to fill this gap.

More and more people are working at night, and also there are a great population who cannot sleep, and would welcome a chance to hear some of those missed items.

Hoping that things may change, but not holding my breath!

Yours sincerely

D. Couchman