

Dear Sirs,

I resent the fact that I have to pay a T.V. licence fee for a mostly blank screen as the programmes on offer nowadays are 90% rubbish. I do not even tune into BBC Radio as Classic FM has been my ~~programme~~ ^{channel} of choice since its inception in September 1992.

Why as at present is so much time being given to trash like the Comic Relief programmes night after night. Why is there wall to wall sport. Original programmes which are always fresh such as Antiques Roadshow are pushed aside. Where are all the quality Dramas & Series which could be made from the very many excellent novels of our time. Where is the quality time given to factual programmes which are both educational & interesting. Given to unending soaps is the answer.

I am very glad that I have grown to enjoy reading and music via Classic L.M., and am not dependant on being glued to the telly as most people seem to be these days.

I am old enough to remember BBC as a flagship of interesting and entertaining programmes, and as I said at the beginning resent faking out for a licence fee for nothing. It is another tax.

Yours faithfully

Mr. E. Gilbeed (Mrs)
