

I would like to put the case of somebody like me - I am elderly and disabled, live alone, don't go out at night and rely on T.V. for company and interest every evening. Many evenings I just don't watch because I find the programmes such an insult to the intelligence. Thinking people, housebound, who don't get out and about to night clubs and pubs etc need to be catered for as well as anyone else. How we long for the days when Alan Clarke and Bronowski had wonderful

Series, giving food for thought. ~~But~~ there no more of their ilk today.

It seems that the word intelligence has become a dirty word.

Please cater for people who don't want to watch other peoples' crime.

Yours sincerely
Mrs. A. Halpern
