Dear Sir,

RE - BBC. PROGRAMS.

My wife & I prefer to watch BBC rather than ITV. because there is less interruptions from adverts. However BBC are advertising more & more & this is unnecessary & off putting when viewing details can be obtained from newspapers & the Radio Times.

It is becoming more obvious the predominance of Scottish accents of the reporters & especially the weather forecasters. Is this essential when English accents must be available.

If the BBC have to make savings why is it a necessity to have two presenters & a news reader on Breakfast TV.? Surely the presenters could also read the news.

It would be helpful if you could be more specific when you refer to ~~the~~ parts of England. You mention the "North" & then talk about the Manchester area. To people living in Tasside - Durham, Manchester is just north of the midlands.

Yours Faithfully

D.M. Hardy
