

13/03/05

Dear Sirs

BBC Charter Review

I would like to know whether the BBC will make a change to its left wing stance after 2006. I have monitored matters closely for a couple of years now and it is quite obvious that whoever is pulling the strings at the BBC has ensured that left - wing commentators have been placed in key positions to exploit every political opportunity that arises. Left wing propaganda is pumped out continually from dawn to dusk each and every day of the week influencing the nation which is simply criminal. The choice of topics used is very cleverly selected to ensure that every ounce of left wing brainwashing is given saturation coverage. It's a clever ploy because the material used is always true, so on the face of things looks satisfactory and beyond suspicion. However when one looks into the "real priorities", the realisation becomes very clear raising doubts and questions. Standards in this country have all but disappeared and in my opinion the BBC has a lot to answer for.

Its about time there is a public independent enquiry to weed out those who have been responsible for manipulating the system to suit their own political ends.

This is a very serious matter affecting the country's democracy and those found guilty should be exposed and held to account.

The fact the public are having to pay for the privilege is bizarre.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours faithfully

John Martin