BBC CHARACTER REVIEW.

Deen Sirs.

Our advert in a national newspaper re the Channel Review prompts me to write today. For some time I have felt that BBC programmes are not coming up to the standard we have known in the past. I realise that we have to move with the times, but must it be with violence, wild sex, and very bad language?

I enjoy the production of the news, and at 85 years old I like good drama. I even enjoy a good football match

However, I find that I continually have to switch off
some drama, because of the bad language etc.

Don't let the BBC come down to the level of some commercial channels your poor reputation is worthy of more
then that.

Yours Sincerely
Manjari Masan (Mrs).
