Mrs. B. B. C. "Your say."

Daily Express - 21st March 05

What I and most of the aged people living in this remote village - South Scotland headland, think there is far too much - violence shown and so many - films which seem to appeal to the - youngsters of today, many of which are often not in the home long enough to view anyway. - whereas the older generation - make a housebound - to have any other interests to keep the long hours, by viewing - we like the old films of long ago - no violence. Romance - or even the long aged Westerns but most of all - Nature films and travel - we are all "arm chair" travellers. We like Michael Palin - David Attenborough - or any other people that let us "visit" for an hour - other parts of the world. Iceland - with the life in these remote places - how other people live and survive in their part of the world. We are enjoying the re-run of "The Two Romies" - does the younger generation do not watch it but this humor - we understand and gives us - something we like instead of this modern - sleazy stuff we do not think funny.

We enjoy Heart Beat - and Mid Summer Murders - they have no real violence. We enjoyed the very short special - of the Family TREE programme - all things about nature and the countries - where one can sit back - relax - and visit the countries which in our young days - we never had the chance - or could afford to visit.

I particularly enjoyed P.L. Stevenson life for he stayed with my - great grand parents - in the old home I grew up in. An interesting film. There is too much sex violence - and cooking.
Of course - there is the 'Switch off' yes - used often - please give us 'oldies' that do not get out much more lovely - films to enjoy.
Of course - we look at some of the 'Soaps' - yes - not bad - but - much could be improved - I am 91 plus + have written a few stories in my time
- across the generations. Now, I like to sit and just view.

Sincerely - I shall P. I. Shaw
