Ref. your BBC, your say

- ① 'Everyone' does not have a television.
Are you going to recognise radio-only users as stakeholders?
- ② When is there going to be greater regulation of the conduct of TV Licensing?
Since the start of March 2003 this non-tv. households has received twenty-four (24) unsolicited letters from TTL attempting to sell a licence. Furthermore the outpouring demonstrates less than overwhelming charm. This harassment is I feel unworthy of the BBC and appears at odds with its holding forth in programmes on the business practice of other organisations.
