Dear Sir,

I am replying to your recent newspaper advert for License Payers to have there say, well I am about to have mine.

I think the BBC is a disgrace. It has recently spent thousands of pounds paying a convicted robber and drug dealer to talk about his experiences whilst sending innocent but poor viewers to prison for not paying their TV licenses.

It has been paying £33,000 a day in taxi fares to greedy self serving BBC employees and hangers on, who when talk on air speak as if they are paid peanuts and are penniless.

It wastes millions on numerous Local radio stations whose content is puerile and which nobody listens to.

The only decent sport on the BBC is the Six Nations rugby which it is doing its best to ruin by showing stupid endless trails for the matches and then lets the events down by poor coverage and commentary.

The only comedy worth watching on the BBC was the Simpsons, which as now gone to Channel 4.

Your political programmes are always one sided, I have yet to see or hear anyone from the right of the political spectrum have there say without being hounded down by three or four from the left.

In conclusion if the BBC is so wonderful let it be financed by subscription, I think you would all find yourselves out of a job.

Yours Faithfully

JCTaylor
