

14/3/2005

Dear Sirs

I wish to put forward one or two ideas for future programmes and trust you will give them consideration instead of the constant outpouring of far better worded complete programmes which seem to predominate on TV screens and have produced a society of soul rattled wots who are changing the English language to such an extent that every sentence must include one of these words.

We have a historical heritage which we can be proud of a parliamentary system developed over the years which is admired by most rational people over the world maybe a series showing how it's evolved from its earliest origins to the present day. Also still on the historical note a history of our famous characters e.g. Robin Hood little known about it's fact or fictional character a loose term for any outlaw. King Arthur. part of the history of Cornwall or Wales an inset into fact or myth. We also need to show more about the new age of settlers from Europe Africa and Asia programmes showing the origins of our new friends.

Maybe a history of the Crusades which stated all this hated by Muslim fanatics. Richard Lion Heart etc I would say should probably be expensive to create but passing on information about our distant ancestors including Anglo Saxons Domesday as a mixture of races Maybe showing why they came to Britain and are still flocking in their thousands to make their homes live start a new life. I could go even further regarding the Industrial Revolution anything which we can be proud of and the much maligned Stone Age British Empire which painted so much of the world pink or red. Children these days are not taught these things in school but education does not stop when the school closes and if broadcast at an early slot could provide admirable a future generation which has gone a stay. The current era of drugs rape sex violence gun crimes have created a situation where you think twice about venturing into the outside environment even in daylight in some of our cities and towns. Maybe programmes about how these towns also came into existence the list is endless possibilities. please provide a source which we can be proud of

Yours sincerely
(Mr.) M. G. Thompson