

Dear Sir/Madam,

Comments re; B.B.C.

I think the BBC has lost its way. In the past the BBC has been impartial in its reporting, but in recent years there is a strong leaning to the left. New Labour in particular. I know it must be difficult with this appalling government leaning on you. None of us will forget the David Kelly affair and the lies told. Luckily Channel 4 have the courage to show the true facts.

In addition to the above you have been so irresponsible over things like paying £4,500 to Fearon to appear on a programme [I gather it has not been shown due to public outrage]. Tony Martin was the real victim and you should show responsibility in reporting and give time and money to criminals.

The BBC lately seems to be a mouthpiece for this government and this is wrong. The Corporation used to be admired all over the world but I doubt if this is now the case.

Please give careful thought to your future Charter, we can all appreciate honest reporting even if it runs counter to what we think personally.

Yours faithfully.

M. Woodhead.
