

Bevin Boys Veterans Badge

A Bevin Boys Badge can be issued to:

Men who were conscripted directly into the mines, known more generally as “ballottees”, those who opted for mine work in preference to joining the Armed Forces or those who were in the Armed Forces and volunteered to become miners during the period 1943-1948 under the scheme instituted by Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labour and National Service.

The Bevin Boys Veterans Badge is a survivors badge and can only be issued posthumously post the date of introduction – 20 June 2007.
