“ Improving the Life Chances of Disabled People”
Report 19th January 2005

Dear Sir/Madam

I am deeply concerned that the above report contains no mention or even acknowledges, people over 65, who have a disability. We also aspire to a meaningful and valued life, why are we being discriminated against because of age. The government through Social Services should provide a transniale service in the form of a resource centre, where self-esteem and empowerment can be developed, and the whole family supported, before moving on. This should not be an age related service but be all-inclusive, and not driven by ideology, which comes from the voiceful. Young and old, have to live side-by-side and all need equal levels of support.

Yours sincerely

John Shaw.
