

As a disabled person that has to use my car for getting around and use a wheelchair I had to send this.

Did you know that to visit shows at Earls Court in London the disabled visitor will have to pay £18.00 to use the disabled parking bays. That is £17 for parking and £1 as a Booking fee, no longer can you turn up on the day and pay. The parking at this venue was free not so long ago.

I am very concerned, that if an organisation like this one can go ahead and charge the disabled persons for the parking of their vehicle what is there to stop other private companies and local authorities to force us to pay when using their parking bays??? I can see a wedge being built between those disabled people that can pay these fees and those who can't, of which I am one.

Thank you for your time in reading this for I know your time is tied up on other matters.

Roy Austen