

An impressively thorough document! Under questions on Health there is a suggestion here that social and cultural factors are being labelled and responded to medically, a question highlighting this issue may be useful: "Does the NHS have a responsibility to bear the costs of self-inflicted problems (this has huge ramifications in almost every other aspect of a persons life)"?

Alternative question "Is the medicalisation of alcohol problems, and the provision of a medical safety net for those who suffer as a consequence of alcohol misuse, factors that support and encourage some people's inappropriate drinking behaviour?"

Kind Regards
