

July 2006

Gillian Reynolds MBE is reappointed as a Trustee of the National Museums Liverpool [NML]

David Lammy, the Minister for Culture, announced today that Gillian Reynolds OBE has been reappointed as an NML Trustee. Her second term of appointment will run from 20 July 2006 to 19 July 2010.

Biographical notes

Gillian Reynolds MBE is a Liverpool born journalist and broadcaster. During her career, she has worked as Radio Critic for the Guardian and for the Daily Telegraph, as well as Programme Controller of Radio City, Liverpool. She has served as Member and Vice Chair of the Art Council of England's Film and Video Broadcasting Panel. She was a Member of the National Sound Archive Advisory Council, and chairs the Charles Parker Archive Trust at the Central Library, Birmingham. She is a Council member of the Broadcasting Committee of the Society of Authors.

Background

National Museums Liverpool (formerly National Museums and Galleries on Merseyside) was established as a national museum in 1986 because of the outstanding quality of its collections. Its origins go back to 1851 and the founding of Liverpool Museum. The National Museums promote the public enjoyment and understanding of art, history and science. This is achieved through exhibitions, education, consultancy, archaeological excavation and fieldwork, scientific and historical research and building and collection care.

NML Trustees give their services on an honorary basis. They receive no remuneration, except for expenses reasonably incurred in the performance of such services.