Chapter 1: Introduction

As of 31 March 2008, DCMS is responsible for 61 public bodies that help deliver the department's strategic aim and objectives. These include three public corporations, two public broadcasting authorities, one executive agency and 55 non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs). NDPBs fall into three categories: executive, advisory and tribunal. Over 94% of DCMS's expenditure is channelled through these bodies.

The relationship between DCMS and its public bodies is a balance between independence and accountability. On the one hand, public bodies perform functions best carried out at arms length from government. For example, some are regulators, and must be seen to be independent of political interests. Others need specialised expertise not found in general public administration.

On the other hand, public bodies spend public money, from the Exchequer or from the National Lottery, and are therefore accountable to the public, Ministers and Parliament. While they should have a large measure of freedom to determine how they operate, they need to do so within the framework of policies and priorities developed by the sponsor department and agreed by Parliament.

That framework is encapsulated in the following key documents, one or more of which applies to most of our public bodies:

- the Public Service Agreement (PSA) sets out our aims and objectives, which encompasses the work of all our public bodies, and our key targets. Details of our PSAs can be found on page 28 of the DCMS Annual Report 2008;
- the funding agreement supports the PSA by explaining what each public body will deliver for the public funding allocated to it, and why; the agreement, signed every two years by the Chair of the body and the Secretary of State, summarises strategy, key activities, and outputs to be delivered;
- the management statement and financial memorandum sets out the rules and guidelines that a public body should observe in carrying out its functions; it is reviewed periodically, but the content remains fairly constant;
- In the case of the National Lottery distributing bodies, policy and financial directions, and a statement of financial requirements set out rules on the treatment of Lottery proceeds, particularly where this differs from the treatment of Exchequer funds.

In addition, all the public corporations, public broadcasting authorities and executive NDPBs are required to produce annual reports and accounts that are either laid before Parliament or placed in the Library of the House of Commons.

We share responsibility with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) for the Office of Communications (Ofcom, a Public Corporation) and the Design Council (an Executive NDPB). Further information on these bodies can be found on BERR's website (<http://www.berr.gov.uk/>).

Chapter 2: Key to Directory Fields

Classification and Key Details of Public Bodies

Public Body Classification

A public body is not part of a government department, but carries out its function to a greater or lesser extent at arm's length from central government. For this reason non-Ministerial departments and executive agencies are excluded from this directory, as they are departments or part of one.

Ministers are ultimately responsible to Parliament for the activities of the bodies sponsored by their department and in almost all cases (except, for example, where there is separate statutory provision) ministers make the appointments to their boards. Departments are responsible for funding and ensuring good governance of their public bodies.

The term 'public body' is a general one which includes: Non-Departmental Public Bodies (NDPBs); Public Corporations; and Public Broadcasting Authorities.

Non-Departmental Public Bodies (NDPBs)

There are a number of types of NDPB. These denote different funding arrangements, functions and kinds of activity. They include:

Executive NDPBs - established in statute and carrying out administrative, regulatory and commercial functions, they employ their own staff and are allocated their own budgets.

Advisory NDPBs - provide independent and expert advice to ministers on particular topics of interest. They do not usually have staff but are supported by staff from their sponsoring department. They do not usually have their own budget, as costs incurred come within the department's expenditure.

Tribunal NDPBs - have jurisdiction in a specialised field of law. They are usually supported by staff from their sponsoring department and do not have their own budgets.

Public Corporations

Public Corporations are market bodies that derive more than 50% of their income from the sale of goods and services. Some charge for regulatory activities where these provide a significant benefit to the person paying the fee. They are owned or controlled by central government. They have substantial day to day operating independence so that they should be seen as institutional units separate from their sponsor departments. Otherwise they may have similar features to Executive NDPBs as detailed above.

Public Broadcasting Authorities

The term Public Broadcasting Authority is a unique public body category currently encompassing the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) and S4C (Sianel Pedwar Cymru, the Welsh Fourth Channel Authority).

The BBC is governed by Royal Charter and an associated Agreement with Government. These arrangements reflect the Corporation's independent status and its unique accountability directly to the licence fee payer. The Charter and Agreement set out the BBC's accountability to Parliament for use of the public money it receives whilst at the same time preserving the BBC's independence on editorial policy and programming.

S4C is a statutory corporation. Its governance arrangements and functions are set out in the Broadcasting Acts of 1990 and 1996 and the Communications Act 2003. S4C's Chair and members are appointed by the Secretary of State and the Authority is responsible for S4C's strategic policy and for ensuring the fulfilment of its statutory functions. S4C is funded primarily by a Government grant, the level of which is prescribed by statute.

Staff Employed

Shows the full-time equivalent number of employees (rounded to the nearest whole number) as at 31 March of the reporting year. This figure does not include staff of the parent department providing a secretariat for executive bodies but does include civil servants temporarily seconded into the body itself, and paid for from the body's funds. BUT for Advisory NDPBs which generally do not employ their own staff the figure shown is the number of WTE (Whole Time Equivalent) secretariat staff supplied by the parent department, where identifiable.

Website:	http://corporate.totesport.com/
Date established:	1928
Terms of Reference:	The tote, was established by Act of Parliament in 1928 and is now the fourth largest bookmaker in the UK. Its original purpose was to offer on-course pool betting on horseracing as an alternative to starting price betting with bookmakers and to distribute its profits for “purposes conducive to the improvement of breeds of horses or the sport of horseracing”. The first major race meetings with tote betting were the flat race meetings at Newmarket (July Course) and Carlisle on 2nd July 1929. Tote Investors Ltd (TIL) was set up in 1930 as an independent company by a ‘group of gentlemen interested in the welfare of racing’ to channel off-course and credit bets into the tote pools. The tote bought TIL in 1962. Today totesport has 190,000 registered clients and accepts credit and debit bets for SP and pool betting on horseracing and most sporting events via the telephone call centre and the internet. The Betting Levy Act 1961 forced significant changes on the racing and bookmaking industries. A horserace betting levy on bookmakers meant that the tote was no longer the only source of betting revenue for racing. The spending powers of the tote were transferred to the Levy Board. Most importantly bookmakers were permitted to

	open betting shops. However, the tote was restricted to opening shops offering bets on horseracing at tote odds. These restrictions were lifted in 1972, from then on the tote could operate as a bookmaker as well as offering pool betting on horses. Today the tote has over 450 retail shops offering cash betting on horseracing and a wide range of sporting and non-sporting events. In 2001 responsibility for appointments to the Tote Board moved from the Home Secretary to the Department of Culture Media and Sport.
