

I am writing on behalf of Evergreen Melodies to request that no changes take place in the current 50 year public domain regulation in respect of music recording copyright. We serve mainly the retired population of the country whose pleasure is enhanced by being able to listen again to records they once knew as children and young people. Any change in the law would make it almost impossible for us to continue and I urge you to allow the status quo to remain.
Peter Worsley (Assistant Editor, This England and Evergreen magazines, Cheltenham)