

I should be devastated if the companies who re-issue vintage labels, both classical and modern that are out of copyright were prevented from doing so. This would mean that the enjoyment of many pieces would only be released after my life-time. I get enormous pleasure from historical recordings, especially as I am not very mobile. If copyright was extended, there would undoubtedly be employment repercussions. Please leave it unaltered.

Sonia Wood