Dear Mr GOWES

I am aware of recent events concerning the debate about the possibility of the extension of copyright. I feel strongly that the copyright period should not be extended as this will seriously affect the small record producers who have been able to unearth unusual and rare recordings from historic classical artists/orchestras which would not be available if copyright period were to be extended. These recordings would disappear forever as the large companies would have no interest in reproducing them.

Yours Sincerely

 Ian Gillis
