

CHAPTER 1

MINISTRY OF DEFENCE

Departments included in this chapter:

I. Ministry of Defence

Introduction

The Ministry of Defence is responsible for providing the military capability necessary to insure against an attack on our territory, our interests or our Allies, to support the civil power in countering terrorism and to promote the United Kingdom's wider interests. The diversity of MOD's commitments is reflected in its size as one of the largest Departments of State and in the huge number, variety and complexity of its assets. Its responsibilities range from research into new technologies through equipment procurement to full scale military operations with concomitant training and logistic support facilities; its locations number several thousand and are spread throughout the world.

Resource Accounting and Budgeting is being introduced across the Department to improve financial management and decision making. Much has been achieved but much also remains to be done in order to establish and validate the fixed asset data underpinning the system. The picture presented here is a snapshot of the current state of development and is inevitably not yet complete or wholly accurate. When complete in the early part of next year the information provided will help the Department to manage its assets in a more controlled and efficient manner. In the same way, the National Asset Register will enable the Government to take more informed decisions on the use of assets. The Government will also have full knowledge of what it owns and, in the interests of improving openness and accountability, has decided that this information should be published.

In the Ministry of Defence, Top Level Budget (TLB) holders are accountable to the Principal Accounting Officer for effective management of the resources allocated to them. The assets in this register, other than fighting equipment, are shown against the TLB which has stewardship responsibility for them. Fighting equipment has been grouped in the most practical way against the appropriate Service area. For similar practical and managerial reasons land holdings are grouped by military Division for the assets of Commander in Chief Land Command and by geographic area for other budget holders. Assets under the control of Agencies are listed separately and are, therefore, not included within the TLBs which have ownership of those Agencies.

All property is situated in the UK unless otherwise stated. Overseas property not owned by the Crown, but which is used by British forces for garrison and training purposes, is included here in accordance with UK Accounting Standards. UK bases occupied by visiting forces are also included, although there is no beneficial use to MOD. Leased property for which a full commercial rent is paid is not included.

Equipment which is in the course of construction, but not in service with the Armed Forces is not included in this register. Some equipments are at an advanced stage and are expected in service shortly. These include the Trident submarine Vengeance, two Landing Platform Docks, a number of Merlin Helicopters and Challenger II tanks.

Information Technology & Communications Equipment are particularly extensive and complex and are difficult to define and list in a document of this type. All the Information, Technology & Communications Equipment will be included in the Resource Accounts to be prepared by the Department from 1 April 1998.

Values of assets have not been included in the register. The valuation of existing assets for the Resource Accounting programme is being carried out using methodologies consistent with professional valuation; values are being compiled on an existing use basis and not market value for disposal. In the case of the land and buildings of the Defence Estate, a firm of chartered surveyors has been engaged to carry out the valuation. In the case of fighting equipment, a comprehensive exercise is under way to ascertain the gross replacement price of each equipment type from which the current value of each specific item will be derived.

The Resource Accounting values of MOD assets will be published in summarised form with the first Departmental Resource Account for the 1999-2000 financial year.

The register also covers assets held by the three Trading Funds and the Executive Non Departmental Public Bodies (NDPBs) for which the Department is responsible. These bodies produce accounts with summary asset values. Investments in Trading Funds are not detailed as their assets are listed separately.

Further information may be found within the Statement on the Defence Estimates, the Departmental Report, and Agency Accounts.

The bodies covered by this register are listed below.

The assets listed in the register are set out by main category as follows:

Land & Buildings
Fighting Equipment
Plant, Machinery and Vehicles
Heritage Assets
Investments

Information Technology and Communications Equipment, and Assets in the Course of Construction are excluded from the register.

A detailed listing of each individual asset would not be practical for the purposes of this document. For clarity, therefore, the assets have been aggregated to make the information manageable, whilst preserving its utility.

Section 4 Executive Non Departmental Public Bodies

The Fleet Air Arm Museum

The Fleet Air Arm Museum was founded in 1964 and established as a charitable trust in 1966.

Designation under the National Heritage Act 1983 took place in April 1986, creating the Museum's status as an Executive Non Departmental Public Body.

The Museum exists to collect, preserve, and display artefacts and supporting material relating to the history of aviation.

The FAA Museum holds over 70 historic naval aircraft, plus the first British assembled Concorde 002. At any time, between 40 and 50 of these are on public display.

In support of the aircraft are major collections of medals, paintings, uniforms and flying clothing, photographs and documents.

Assets of the charity may only be disposed of on the authority of the Trustees, and in line with the provisions of the Trust Deed. The disposal of any assets acquired from the MOD or purchased with grant in aid funds may only be disposed of after consultation with the MOD in accordance with the Museum's Financial Memorandum.

The National Army Museum

The National Army Museum was established by Royal Charter in 1960 to collect, preserve, and exhibit objects and records relating to the Regular and Auxiliary forces of the British Army and of the Commonwealth, and to encourage research into their history and traditions. Grant in Aid status was given to the Museum under the National Heritage Act 1983. The Grant, made by the MOD, is administered by the Director of the Museum on behalf of the governing body, the Council of the National Army Museum.

The National Army Museum was built using private funds only and is owned by the Council of the National Army Museum.

The Council has a 999 year lease on the site from the Royal Hospital Chelsea. Neither the site nor building are available for disposal other than by the NAM Council with Charity Commissioners' approval.

The Museums collections include medals, uniforms weapons, equipment and vehicles used by the British soldier and a major collection of fine and decorative art recording his service and achievements over the centuries.

The Museum is a registered charity. Its assets are vested in and owned corporately by the appointed members of the Museum Council who effectively act as Trustees.

The Royal Air Force Museum

The Royal Air Force Museum is located in Hendon in buildings leased from the MOD. The Royal Air Force Museum is a registered charity.

The Museum displays 70 aircraft and owns 150 more. The collection includes uniform, memorabilia, medals, and a small research archive.

The Royal Marines Museum

The Royal Marines Museum acts as a custodian for the Royal Marines historical collection. It occupies a seven acre site at Eastney in Portsmouth which consists of a large Grade II Listed Building, lawns, car park and a Victorian Fort.

The Museum's collection consists of many thousands of objects. There are pictures and silver as well as prints, musical instruments and various items of furniture. There are also books, diaries and albums and several hundred thousand photographs, many of which are unique. Uniforms form an important part of the collection, as do the approximately 7,000 medals (including 10 VCs) and over a thousand military weapons.

The disposal of any item belonging to the Royal Marine historical collection is controlled under the terms of the Museum's Acquisition and Disposal Policy. Any assets acquired from the MOD or purchased with grant in aid funds may only be disposed of after consultation with the MOD in accordance with the Museum's Financial Memorandum. Assets acquired in other ways or purchased with Museum Trust funds may be disposed of at the discretion of the Museum Trustees.

The Royal Naval Museum

The Royal Naval Museum is located within HM Naval Base Portsmouth. Founded in 1911, it has always been associated with HMS Victory and Nelson, but lately it has been greatly expanded to cover the whole history of the Royal Navy and its people from the earliest times to present.

The Museum's collection contains a wide range of artefacts including ship models, figureheads, swords, uniforms, medals, and paintings.

Also contained in the collection are over 100,000 photographs, and a manuscript collection primarily of private letters, correspondence, personal log books and the like.

There is also a library containing over 15,000 volumes and considerable runs of serials and parliamentary papers used by scholars and researchers.

The Museum is a registered charity and the Trustees are not able to dispose of any asset "in any manner inconsistent with any condition lawfully attached to any gift or bequest". Any assets acquired from the MOD or purchased with grant in aid funds may only be disposed of after consultation with the MOD in accordance with the Museum's Financial Memorandum.

The Royal Navy Submarine Museum

The Royal Navy Submarine Museum's objective is to provide an effective and accessible repository for the heritage of the Navy and to raise public awareness of the Royal Navy Submarine Service.

The Museum holds collections of the following material: submarine hulls, submarine ordnance, submarine rescue and salvage, submarine shore training, firearms, books, documents, medals, models, personal memorabilia, photographs, ship relics, uniforms, visual art, china, audio visual material and memorials.

The Museum is a registered charity. The collection is held in trust for the public benefit, and, as stated in the Trustees' Collecting policy, there is a strong presumption against disposal of any items in the collection. Any money raised by disposal of an item would be devoted solely for the purchase of additions to the collection. Any assets acquired from the MOD or purchased with grant in aid funds may only be disposed of after consultation with the MOD in accordance with the Museum's Financial Memorandum.

The Oil and Pipelines Agency

The Oil and Pipelines Agency is a corporate body established by the Oil and Pipelines Act 1985. It is responsible for managing the Government Pipeline Storage System on behalf of the MOD, overseeing all aspects of the operation and maintenance of the pipeline and storage facilities.
