

Hello There!

A friend has directed me to your site.

As an 80 year old retiree I have been restoring old records to CDs for three or four years now after trying to get some sensible response from major record companies. The majority reaction was no response at all, and, if there was, once they learnt one's efforts extended to a dozen or so copies in each case and not hundreds, they also went back to remaining silent.

I am not seeking glory, but the letters I get from people pleased by what I do makes me feel good as well as feeling I am preserving something worthwhile of the past. . Were it not for my efforts and like minded people most of what has been resurrected would still lie buried somewhere, unknown, unwanted. . As a consequence I am much opposed to this intention to extend the copyright period even further and would like to know if there is anything an individual like myself can do to oppose the admendment intention.

Sincerely, Frank Bristow
