

Sir,

On subject of Music Copyright Law. My view is that the law should stand as it is and not be extended.

Are Cliff Richard The Beatles Elton John and their ilk (all millionaires) so greedy for a few more pounds that they want to deny the likes of me - a Senior Citizen - the pleasure I get from listening to 50s music and vocalists on CDs issued by small recording companies?

Of course there is the added factor of the employment these small companies provide and of course the VAT they earn on their sales. Sales of material that the big record companies would not reissue anyway!!.

Margaret Smith