

ANNEX A: Review of Enforcement in Environmental Regulation: Detailed “Map” of Enforcement System

This “map” draws attention to the importance of relationships between the participants in the system, not least the interactions between regulator and the wider community of individuals, businesses, and organisations representing their interests.

The map does not show most of the wider regulatory processes or map the various incentives to compliance. It does not show the communications between regulators and operators which are an important feature at key stages of enforcement. It also covers areas the Review does not, notably requirement setting, consultations as part of requirement setting, or processes such as access to environmental information under the Environmental Information Regulations.
