

COMMITMENT FORM SUPPLY CHAIN CODE OF PRACTICE

Commitment to the Code:

By endorsing, committing and adhering to the Code the UKCS supply chain will improve commercial relationships and, in turn, boost UKCS competitiveness.

Companies commit to the Code as a purchaser or supplier. The senior UK executive and the manager responsible for supply chain activities both sign on behalf of their company. They should communicate the Code to staff and emphasise the importance of Code commitment.

Companies signing up to the Code start at entry level and gradually work their way through Bronze and Silver levels towards Gold status for full compliance. FPAL performance feedback from the supply chain on the purchasing organisation determines the level of compliance a company achieves, and this is assessed by Oil & Gas UK in conjunction with FPAL and the Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC). Code signatories also play a positive part in helping the industry assess the overall effectiveness of the Code across the sector through completion of an annual compliance survey.

In addition signatories should actively support the PILOT Forward Workplan and regularly provide project updates to demonstrate working towards the Gold award of compliance.
