Dear Mr and Mrs Bowles,

I am very sorry to have disturbed you at such an awful time. I can't pretend to understand how you must be feeling. I came to see you today to offer you the chance to pay tribute to Sebastian in our newspaper. For some families, to be able to tell the world about their loved one offers a great sense of comfort. Others wish to remain very private. I do not prejudge whether you wish to speak publicly and will not bother you again. If you are happy to contribute anything - be that in words or pictures - then please do get in touch. You could be sure that any story would be handled with the utmost sensitivity. We would be happy to sit down with you at any point or - if that would be too painful - to publish anything you required or with a directly - or except by email.

Please accept my sincere condolences, and apologies for bothering you at this tragic time.

Sincerely,
