February 1988

March 1988

Discussion
- Failure to involve the Neuropathogenesis Unit
- Delay in informing the Veterinary Investigation Centres
- Restrictions on dissemination of information by VI Service staff
  - General suppression of information
  - Embargo on references to scrapie
- Should the CVO have restricted dissemination of the information?
- Compulsory notification

3 Epidemiology

Introduction

Initial investigations and conclusions

The identification of feed as a possible cause of infection

Covert investigation of the feed theory

The feed industry consulted

Changes in the production processes of MBM identified

Feed identified as a common factor

MBM the likely factor

Discussion
  - Was there delay in identifying feed as the cause of infection?
  - Why was the feed infectious?

4 The ruminant feed ban

Introduction

Mr MacGregor’s decision

The meeting with the industry

The decision to grant a period of grace
5 Human health implications, notification, and slaughter and compensation  118
