Qualification Journey – Accreditation to Publication on LAD

This note describes the process, organisations and timescales involved in an accredited qualification acquiring approval and funding information and being published on the Learning Aims Database (LAD). It is intended to provide short-term information on the current organisation and processes pre-April, 2010 when efficiencies, improvements and regulatory changes will alter the current business. It includes:

1. A high level process diagram of the qualification journey.
2. A breakdown of the current timescales for the journey.
3. A visual aid providing step-by-step instructions on how to find the qualification using the contact details.
4. Contact details to obtain a status update on the qualification.

The intended audience for this note are further education stakeholders particularly Providers and Awarding Organisations, to understand how the different teams are involved in the process (and particularly the difference between the Section 96 and Section 97 processes). LSC staff should continue to report LAD issues via the usual route (LSC Central Services Help Desk)

1. High Level Process

This is a high level representation of the qualification journey.
2. Timescales

The table below identifies the time taken for a qualification to be available, with initial (but not necessarily all) funding information on LAD following its accreditation. The time shown is the typical time taken, an approximate time if all other data/factors are in place (the median between the minimum and maximum time, in practical terms, that the process takes). This does not include timings for exceptions.

The table also identified the different teams the qualification is passed to before all information is added and publication completed.

The above process is subject to change due to ongoing Machinery of Government (MOG) changes. The LSC is looking to review and improve the process. As changes are made updated process guidance will be issued.
