NO.077 P05

(c) the sub-divisional commander's report should include:

- (i) full details of the threat;
- (ii) name and address of person(s) threatened;
- (iii) names and addresses of all directors/members of the company;
- (iv) address of the firm's works/factory;
- (v) nature of work and SF site(s) at which engaged;
- (vi) latest Special Branch threat assessment should be attached;
- (vii) firm recommendations given and the basis on which they are made.

Divisional commanders and regional assistant chief constables should also comply with (vii) above.

As a general guide, application will only be made to the NIO where a specific threat, as opposed to general threat, applies. (In this respect a specific threat is deemed to be an authenticated threat to the life of the individual concerned over and above a general threat to contractors and others working for police and military).

(7) Other Persons

Local Special Branch concerned will inform the sub-divisional commander in whose area the subject resides and works and the sub-divisional commander will take whatever action he considers necessary. The local Special Branch will also inform Special Branch, Headquarters (E3). The latter will pass the details to DI Security.

3. IMMINENT ATTACK

If information received indicates that an attack on any person is imminent, the member receiving the information will immediately take all necessary action to inform the person at risk and then comply with paragraph 2 ante.

4. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS

Where it is considered appropriate by a sub-divisional commander, after consultation with the divisional head of Special Branch, crime prevention officers will be tasked to provide those under threat with written advice/literature on their personal security and/or surveys of their homes/businesses. Written advice will be submitted via sub-divisional commanders for approval and copies retained by the crime prevention officer for future reference.

Service of written security advice should be by personal service, in the presence of a witness, if necessary, or where security conditions dictate by 'Registered Post'. Refusal to accept advice should also be noted in writing and kept by the sub-divisional commander/crime prevention officer on file. In the event of subsequent criminal attacks on the person(s) so advised the crime
