

supervising member of the Commission, would not of course, have been therefore making any decision as to discipline. ████████ decided on 31 March 2000 to recommend that no police should face any disciplinary proceedings. I found this decision surprising in the light of my statement, the evidence at hand and Paul Donnelly's subsequent critique of events, however this was a matter for ████████.

179. I confirm I have no further information which may assist the Rosemary Nelson Inquiry.
