In February 1997 I lived at [REDACTED] with my girlfriend [REDACTED] and my son, who at that time was four years old. Late on the evening of the 5th February 1997 we were evacuated from the house as there had been a bomb alert in the area. I went with my girlfriend and son to the [REDACTED] in Lake Street, Lurgan. We spent the night there. On the morning of the 6th February 1997 at about 7 am I left the club to go back to [REDACTED] to see if it was safe to move back into our home. It was, so I went back and got my girlfriend and son. We returned to our house at about 7.30 am and went to bed. Around lunch time I went to see a friend but my girlfriend and son stayed at home. At about 2 pm my friend told me that a bomb had been found in [REDACTED] Lurgan. He had apparently heard this on the news. When I heard this I phoned home but there was no answer so I phoned the Police Station at Lurgan to see if she was there. I did this because another friend had told me that my girlfriend might have been lifted. The person who I spoke to at the Police Station wouldn't tell me anything. I thought about the situation for a while and having spoken with another friend who told me the Police had found a bomb in my
