Solicitor tells of overturned life conviction

By: Phelim McAleer
 A MAN charged yesterday with the murder of two policemen in Lurgan last week has "strenuously denied" his involvement in the attack.
 In a statement issued through his solicitor, Colin Duffy said he knew nothing about the killings.
 Duffy (29) had served part of a life sentence for the murder of a former soldier in Lurgan before being freed on appeal last September following a high profile campaign.

He was convicted on the eyewitness evidence of PUP member Lindsay Robb. He was later freed after Robb was found guilty of trying to organise an arms shipment for the UVF.
 At the special court in Cragavon yesterday an RUC detective inspector said there was identification evidence against Duffy, of Drumnamore Gardens, Lurgan.
 He was charged with murdering Constable Roland John Graham and Reserve Constable David Andrew Johnston in Lurgan on June 16.

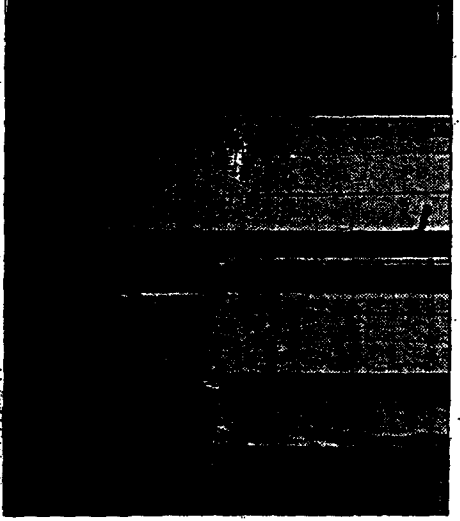

Both men were shot from behind in the head at point blank range.
 In appeals for witnesses to the shooting detectives said the gunmen were heavily disguised and wearing wigs.
 Duffy entered the dock, handcuffed, and escorted by six uniformed policemen.
 The detective inspector said he could confirm Duffy had made a formal complaint about having been charged in the absence of a solicitor.
 He said that when arrested, charged and cautioned Duffy denied both charges.

By Niall Blaney
 A YOUNG Belfast family yesterday spoke their terror at being caught up in a paramilitary attack.
 CS Gas canisters were fired through windows of Michael McClune's Arlin Drive home before police stormed the filled house where his wife and two children were sleeping.

 The RUC yesterday apologised to the family for the trauma and said the McClune were "completely innocent".
 Police recovered two fully-loaded rifles some distance from the family's home and one man was arrested.
 The RUC said it had foiled a paramilitary attack after armed men took over a close to Dummurry.
 Mr McClune's wife Eunice (33), daughter Lyndsey (4) and one-year-old son An had to be taken to hospital for treatment.
 The 37-year-old Royal Victoria Hospital worker said: "I thought it was gunmen police anti-terrorist squad fired CS Gas came straight up the stairs - I thought I was a man who had come into shoot me. I had been in the front bedroom and my wife and daughter were in the bedroom, while my young son was in his room. I heard what I thought was an explosion. I opened the curtains and saw gun pointing from the garden. They had masks on."
 "There were rifles coming through window and I ran into the front room. I grabbed my young son and took him into back bedroom and tried to pull a war across the door."
