Thinking about what to do next?
Carry on learning and get your hands on some extra cash.

If you continue to learn and develop your skills, you could receive up to £30 a week to help you out with things like books, travel and equipment.

It’s called the Education Maintenance Allowance or EMA for short, and it’s managed by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). The money the EMA could give you means you’ll be able to concentrate on enjoying your course or programme without worrying so much about money. We’ll also give you cash bonuses if you stick at it and do well.

Did you know?
• The main reason young people drop out of education and training at 16 is money.
• Without a minimum of five good GCSEs (A*-C) or their equivalent, like an NVQ level 2, you’re 10% more likely to be unemployed.
• By 2010, fewer jobs will be open to people without at least five good GCSEs or their equivalent.
• Staying in learning at 16 is a springboard to getting good training, better qualifications and a decent job.
• The more qualifications you have, the more choice and earning potential you will have when you’re looking for a job.
What’s so good about EMA?
EMA can give you up to £30 a week to help you get more qualifications or vocational skills after 16.

This includes full-time further education courses at college or school, an LSC-funded Entry to Employment (e2e) programme, or a Programme Led Apprenticeship.

The extra cash will come in handy — and because it’s paid directly to you, you’ll be a bit more independent and you won’t have to rely so much on your parents or carers.

We want to encourage you to continue learning because skills and qualifications mean you’re likely to earn more money when you get a job. Learning can also help you work out what you enjoy, what you’re good at and what you might want to do in life.

Having at least five good GCSEs or their equivalent, like an NVQ level 2, really helps you get on in life — research proves it. Thanks to EMA, money need not be a barrier to helping you do well, and your hard work and success will be recognised by cash bonuses too.

Did you know?
• EMA can make continuing learning more affordable.
• You can get extra cash to buy the things you need, and bonuses for doing well on your course or learning programme.
• You won’t have to ask your parents or carers to pay for things so often.
• You can focus on getting new skills and qualifications — and experience shows these can lead to better opportunities in the future.
• Your household benefits will not be affected by EMA payments.

In the first year of EMA we helped around 300,000 people — and in the future we expect even more people will benefit.

“Did you know that I have received £30 a week to help me continue learning? This is really helpful because it means I can focus on getting new skills and qualifications, and it’s not a burden on my parents. That’s definitely a good thing.”
Can I get it?

“Now I’m at college, I’m receiving EMA, which really helps me out. I’ve got a part-time job but I don’t have to work so many hours, so I’ve got more time to concentrate on my studies.”
Let’s talk money
If you’re eligible for EMA, how much could you get?

EMA payments are £30, £20 or £10 per week. The exact amount you’ll receive will depend on your household income. For relevant income thresholds please visit the EMA website www.direct.gov.uk/ema or call the EMA helpline on 0808 10 16219.

Don’t forget, there are BONUSES too. On top of your weekly allowance, you could receive bonuses if you do well on your course or learning programme, and meet certain targets – you’ll agree these with your teacher, tutor or provider when you start.

You need to apply to receive EMA – turn the page for information on how to do this. Or turn to page 12 to read our frequently asked questions first.

“Without EMA, I’d definitely be struggling. It’s taken the pressure off financially – and the bonuses have been a big incentive for me to go to college regularly.”
How do I apply for EMA?

It’s straightforward. Just follow this process, step by step:

Step 1 Make sure you have a bank or building society account. We’ll pay your EMA directly into your account — so if you haven’t got one already, talk to your parents or carers, or ask at your local bank or building society about setting one up.

Step 2 Get an application form. Do this as soon as you can or you might have to wait for your money. Forms are available from schools, colleges, learning providers or your Connexions personal adviser. You can also order one online at www.direct.gov.uk/ema, or by calling the EMA helpline on 0808 10 16219.

Step 3 Fill in the form with your parents or carers. They’ll need to send evidence of your household income for the relevant tax year. This might be their Tax Credit Award Notice (TC602), or P60. For more information visit the EMA website or call the EMA helpline on 0808 10 16219.

Step 4 Get something which shows you’ve got a bank or building society account. You need to send us this with your form. This could be a copy of a bank/building society statement or a letter from your bank or building society on their headed paper, that shows your sort code and account number.

Step 5 Send the form to us. The address is already on the form. Remember to include proof of your household income and something that shows you have a bank or building society account.

We’ll then check if you’re entitled to EMA and write to you to let you know how much you’ll get.

Step 6 The next step is to enrol on your further education course or programme. You’ll also need to sign an EMA contract with your school, college or learning provider. This sets out what’s expected of you in terms of attendance, coursework and progress.

Frequently asked questions
We’ve got the answers.

As this is probably the first time you or your parents or carers will have heard of EMA, you might have a few questions. Here are some of the ones people ask most often:

How do you work out our household income?
We look at the income of the adults in your house who are responsible for you. This is usually your parents or carers, but it could be another family member or adult. If your parents don’t live together, we don’t include any maintenance paid by the parent who doesn’t live with you.

If you are living independently, or are a parent with responsibility for your own child, other assessment arrangements might apply. Please contact the EMA helpline on 0808 10 16219 for more information.

Will it affect our other benefits?
No, EMA gets paid on top of other household benefits.

What do I need to do to get my weekly EMA payment?
To receive EMA you must agree and sign an EMA contract with your school, college or learning provider. This will set out what is expected of you in terms of attendance, coursework and progress.

I have a part-time job. Is my own income taken into account?
No. EMA is not affected by any money earned by a young person from a part-time job.
