Dear XX XXXXX,

During the operational period from January 2003 – 30th June 2006, 1897 mobilised British Military Personnel (Regular and Reservists) who deployed to Operation TELIC were assessed by, and received treatment from, the Defence Medical Services for mental health conditions thought to be related to their deployment. This represents around 1.5% of personnel deployed to Op TELIC over the same period.

Of this number 278 Servicemen fulfilled the diagnostic criteria for Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. This represents around 0.3% of personnel deployed to Op TELIC over the same period.

829 were diagnosed with an Adjustment Disorder. This figure will include some servicemen who have post traumatic symptoms not amounting to full PTSD but with some symptoms of post traumatic stress.

I hope this is helpful.

Regards
